

The Family that Prays Together

“We all know young children are little sponges, absorbing what goes on around them in word and deed, and what they love and admire, they will imitate. They love their parents above all things. So how perfect it is for the parents to be the ones to model a passion for Jesus and the gospel in front of them... Children need to be taken by the hand, and shown what to do in the daily routine of life. Then together they can do the works of Jesus as they and their parents worship the Master side by side.” Becky Fischer

The family that prays together is a dynamic weapon in God’s hand to break the powers of darkness that are trying to invade our schools, communities, and cities.

God is raising up children and youth as intercessors. Recently we were praying with a missionary when suddenly his four-year-old daughter came and stood quietly with us as we prayed. God was giving her a heart for intercession even though she was very young. Young people are beginning to spend hours in the prayer meetings because they are catching the vision for intercession. Their prayers are becoming powerful and passionate. The main weapon to change society and the coming generation is the family that prays together.

The temptation to let the world invade our homes is very great. The enemy knows how vital the family is in raising the coming generation to live for God and for Him alone. How he tempts with television and activity, busyness and worldly entertainment, the internet and shopping. He will do anything to keep God out of the center. Therefore, we have the responsibility to say “No” to the enemy and bring God into the center of everything we do. How can this be done?

It has to be done in the daily routine of life and with a determination to put God first in everything.
